

plants and just naturally asks for a JOB!

She doesn't want the job. Oh, dear no. She doesn't need it, either!

But she DOES want to see and get acquainted with HER screen idol.

Authority for this interesting statement is Miss Laura Oakley, chief of police of Universal City. All the girls who apply for positions come under her surveillance.

"It's easy to pick out those girls," said the handsome chiefess. "They look prosperous and as if they were seeking a little adventure and romance. Anyway, you know, a girl wears her heart on her sleeve, so often, that I can just naturally tell which girls want the work and which want to get a peep at their screen idol, in real life."

FUNNY MAN GOES INTO FILMS

LEW FIELDS

And now Lew Fields has "broken into the movies." The old-time comedian has appeared on the screen with his partner, Joe Weber, and they look just as natural and funny as they do on the stage.

Fields appears as Ludwig Streus in "Old Dutch," his favorite comedy, and Vivian Martin, the movie star, plays Ludwig's daughter.

"They come from all parts of the country. We let them stay around a week or two. If they have ability, of course, they are given a chance. But if they get in the way, we just tell them there is nothing more doing."

Among the "movie" stars who are the object of these romance-loving girls' attention may be numbered J. Warren Kerrigan of the curly hair; Francis Dillon, of speaking stage fame; Bob Leonard, director and leading man, and Herbert Rawlinson, the athletic young hero of many entertaining film stories.

Chief Oakley, who thinks her official job quite an honor as well as quite a lot of fun, has made an enviable name on the stage, as well as on the screen.

She yields her weapon of power with a smile and was never known to give an order more than once.

Among further offerings of this character the Biograph Company has now in preparation the famous drama, "A Celebrated Case." Especial interest attaches to this production because of the revival of this celebrated play, with an all-star cast, at the Empire theater, New York, on April 7th.

Sixteen children in Western Montana go to school on skis from October to June. The snow is sometimes so deep that the telegraph wires are right beside the children. Willows stuck in the snow mark the trail to and from the school.
